Santana Golf & Country Club

Santana Golf & Country Club

Santana Golf & Country Club is situated between La Cala de Mijas and Fuengirola with breathtaking views of the Mijas mountains, close to the Mediterranean Sea. Before its development, Santana Golf was to be an old avocado farm, set in 138 acres of picturesque parkland. Today, none of that flavour and charm has been lost, with Santana Golf being set in and amongst the groves of oranges and avocados - allowing nature and golf to become one.

Santana Golf & Country Club opened its fairways for the first time on the Costa del Sol in 2004. The concept was to release individual undeveloped plots for private sale, with the average size of the first 34 individual plots being 1,650m². Since then, further plots have been released ranging in size from 1,000m² to 4,620m², of which many enjoy a frontline golf position. A large number of the plots at Santana Golf & Country Club benefit from a South-West orientation and have a fantastic 25% build coverage ratio.

The 18 hole course is a par 72 and spans across approximately 6,306 metres. The course architect, Cabell B Robinson, made a few alterations to the existing course, thus resulting in a flat course with wide pathways and pathways for golf buggies, which are hidden behind rows of magnificent fruit trees. The course is technically challenging with water obstacles situated in various positions to test any player's ability.

Prices start from 300,000 Euros for a 1,200m² plot and up to 690,000 Euros for a 4,620m²
